Photos By Yann Arthus-Bertrand

Yann Arthus-Bertrand was born in March 1946. At the age of 30 he moved to Kenya with his wife Anne to study lions in the Maasai Mara Reserve and discovered a unique way of capturing the beauty of the natural world, flying over the landscape in a balloon. He has produced 60 books of his work and holds the most prestigious award in France, the Legion D'Honneur, for his photographic work on the environment. He now lives in France and although he specializes in aerial photography, a true artist, he also captures pet owners and their charges.

The longest lead they'll ever need.

Australasian Animal Registry

A not-for-profit organisation and a division of the Royal Agricultural Society of NSW

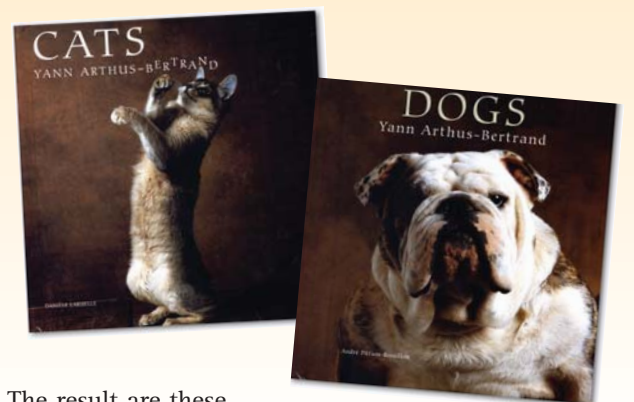

The AUSTRALASIAN ANIMAL REGISTRY is the largest, most comprehensive animal microchip registry and pet recovery service in the Australasian region. In fact we have over 600,000 pets already registered.

Why Use the AAR?

- A flat lifetime registration fee regardless of chip type or supplier.
- Access to AAR services 24 hours, 7 days for all authorised users, clients and the general public.
- A VET ONLY toll free number is provided for all authorised users in Australia and New Zealand.
- All users receive the highest level of service and information.
- A new certificate is issued on initial registration, change of ownership (with fee payment), change of address (no cost) and as acknowledgment of other major detail alterations.
- Accuracy is our priority, so AAR uses latest scanning technology to enter details of microchip registration – ensuring accuracy of information for the user.
- Processing within two to four days of receipt of correctly completed forms (weekly postal turnaround).

We have a discount scale for larger quantity purchases of pre-paid forms. This can increase your business profits, or you can pass the savings on to your clients.

The result are these two recent titles which are a collection of portraits, taken by a true animal-lover. The photos convey a rich sense of humour and consistently reveal the true personality of the beast. The dogs are organised into 10 groups by the International Cynological Federation and represent all major races bred in France: from the Groenendael Belgian Shepherd to the Welsh Corgi Pembroke, the Akita and the Wisigoth Spits. Through the texts, which contain both pertinent information and amusing anecdotes, you'll learn a lot about your dog and many others.

For the cats, he chose an international feline judge for all cat breeds who formed the selection of cats and contributed her thorough knowledge. These quirky, amusing and rich photographs capture both fierce felines and playful pussies.

Whether your cat lover or more of a dog person, there is one commonality through both titles—the connection of the human animal bond.
